Autumn Brilliance serviceberry is a fast-growing multi-stemmed small flowering tree that grows to a height of 20-25 feet. Autumn Brilliance has early (April) flowers, edible fruit, clean summer foliage and brilliant red fall color. Light grey bark is attractive in winter. Serviceberries can be used anywhere a small flowering multi-stemmed tree fits, but they are best in a naturalistic planting at the edge of woodlands, near ponds and stream banks, or blended into shrub borders; especially with an evergreen background.

Walker’s Low is a tough catmint with grey foliage and strong bluish purple flowers from spring to frost. It works well as an edging plant and will cascade nicely over a wall. It is a flowering ground cover and a dense, compact grower that can hold a significant space in the garden. The grey-green foliage helps blend with other plants. Plants do well in full sun to partial shade and tolerate dry conditions and poor soils. It grows between 18 and 30 inches tall. This prolific bloomer is a great addition to the perennial or shrub border. And, it is deer resistant.
